In the beginning of March 58, the 25th Guards Tank Regiment stationed in the casernes in Fuerstenwalde-Pest Strasse were evacuated from Frankfurt/Oder to an unknown location. taken over and guarded

Since 5 to 8 March the casernes have been ~~occupied~~ by the NVA, and the NVA is to occupy the casernes soon. In the Muehlenstrasse casernes formerly occupied by the 84th <sup>HTAG</sup> Regiment is the <sup>Tank</sup> 10th Regiment.   made up of infantry and tanks; the 84th <sup>HTAG</sup> Regiment is still in Frankfurt/Oder. <sup>mch Regt</sup> No units besides the 25th Regt have been removed from Frankfurt/Oder, and no new ones have come in.

The Braunnderfer-Strasse casernes are supposed to be evacuated, and already are partially, but will be occupied by other Soviet units. An antitank unit has been removed from Berkenbrück, but there is still a large vehicle park at Berkenbrueck. The other Soviet units are still in Fuerstenwalde. The departing Soviet troops, particularly officers, have sold many things, including furniture, quite cheaply to the German population. The officers could take only a limited amount of baggage with them, up to one truckload per officer, including family effects.

A rather large engineer unit is stationed in Naumburg, in barracks on ~~Japaner Strasse~~ Laetlich Kaserne.
 are many more Soviet officers in Naumburg than in Weissenfels, but more troops in Weissenfels.
 Officer billets are on Schoenburger Strasse. In Allmerich, near Naumburg, the old bombed out are being Hindenburg Kaserne artillery casernes ~~XXXXXXXXXX~~ rebuilt for the Soviets, but are not occupied as yet. In the Fledwinger Forest, 4 km from Naumburg, along the road to Jena, an exercise area (?) has been built. The area is on the left side (going toward Jena) and is separated from the road by a wire fence. New telephone lines have been laid in the area, one going to the engineer unit in Naumburg, new shelters, bunkers, and a tent camp have been set up.

There are three separate Soviet restricted areas in Naumburg—the caserne area in Jenaer Strasse, which is a large vehicle park and a rather large communications (net engineer) unit. Near the caserne area is a large villa which serves as an officers casino, and every evening light signals (Morse code?) are sent/and received ~~from~~ <sup>from</sup> there from the Soviet area in Flemminger Forest;

2. Weissenfels-er Strasse, mainly Soviet officer family residential area;

3. Scheenburger Strasse, garages for light military vehicles and a large motorcycle unit.

Most of the Soviet troops are at the Jenaer Strasse casernes, but small units are located in the other two restricted areas.

The Soviet camp in Flemminger Forest was established in autumn 1957, and consists of tents for the soldiers, bunkers, covered parking areas for vehicles (of which there are a large number). . This camp is connected with the Jenaer Strasse casernes, and the soldiers wear the same yellow shoulderboards. Although the forest camp is called an exercise ground locally, it is too small to be that, and there is no firing practice there. The area is ~~used~~ <sup>used</sup> by the German farmers to whom it belongs have access to it, to get wood.

Near Naumburg, close to the village of Scheenburg, is another Soviet camp in a wooded area, which is also called an exercise place, but at which there is no firing practice. There is no road into this area, and the Soviets use cross-country vehicles to enter it.

No units have been removed from Naumburg or Weissenfels, and no new troops brought in. On 20 Feb 58, 26 three-axle Studebaker-type trucks came to Weissenfels by rail and were unloaded there. <sup>(fragments)</sup> On each truck was an apparatus of unknown type which was about 1.5 meters high and 2 meters wide (square). These pieces of equipment were covered with canvas, and there was nothing to observe except a few iron bars. This equipment was taken to the caserne on Selauer Strasse. The vehicles ~~were~~ <sup>were</sup> not new.

On 17 Jan 58 6 flatcars loaded with/heavy AA guns each went from Berlin-Pankow to Velten via Hennigsdorf and were unloaded at Velten. From 8 to 24 Jan 58 20 tank cars went from Berlin-Pankow to Velten and were emptied there, probably fuel for Soviet units at Sachsenwald.

On 31 Dec 57 at 2100 hours a massive search was instituted in the Fuerstenwalde area, for <sup>which</sup> were used which/several specially formed Soviet patrols, ~~xxxxxxxxxx~~ Peoples Police detachments,
 and 100 from Gaselan plant) <sup>(70 men)</sup> and the Battle Groups of the SED Kreis Direction. The search was carried out in the town of Fuerstenwalde and surroundings in the streets, railroad stations, autobahn, highways, and in the woods. Several hundred armed men took part in the search; the Auxiliary Police and and Battle Groups were armed with old German carbines. An East German police official stated that a Soviet officer and two soldiers had escaped from the Frankfurt/Oder area.

On 2 Jan 58 the search ceased; the police official stated that it had been unsuccessful, that the Soviets had escaped. The officer was said to have been stationed in the former cable plant in Fuerstenwalde, and had been ~~xxxxxxxx~~ assisted by a German girl friend whom he had known as long ago as four years before.

In the past four weeks there have been no new troop transports departing from Fuerstenwalde and none arriving, apart from small groups. About two transport trains per week, either empty or full, go to the same depot in Fuerstenwalde and two leave the depot. Other Soviet troops in the area receive about 3 to 6 loaded transports per week.

In late February 58 the Fuerstenwalde/Spree station was crowded with Soviet transports of freight and passenger cars. On 27 Feb the first transport, loaded with troops, tanks, and vehicles, left in the direction of Frankfurt/Oder; two cars, pulled by two locomotives, presumably going to the USSR. About 280 more cars remain in the station and are being loaded. Another transport was supposed to leave on 27 Feb, and in the next few days the entire complex was supposed to leave; about 3,000 men and their equipment were included in the move.

Several Soviet units have left the Fuerstenwalde area; the Gartenstrasse caserne has been almost completely emptied with the exception of a few Soviet troops. Some of the Soviet troops ~~stationed~~ housed at the Brauserfer/<sup>strasse</sup> caserne have been removed ~~enroute~~ as well as anti-aircraft ~~units~~ units from the airfield at Fuerstenwalde (they took small anti-aircraft equipment with them. It is not known where these units were transferred, presumably to the Soviet Union.

In March 1958 new troops arrived at Fuerstenwalde, some by rail and some on foot. On 17 March 1958 a new anti-aircraft unit arrived in Fuerstenwalde and was quartered in the caserne at ~~Bismarck~~ Braunsdorfer strasse. Included are at least 20 pieces of anti-aircraft equipment (minimum 12.5 cm caliber with "Maendungsbramme and gepanserten Zugmaschinen) and a corresponding number of troops (Exact number not known). ~~Since 1958-1959 the unit has been assigned to the 1st Air Defense Division.~~ Judging from letter correspondence found in the vicinity it can be assumed that this anti-aircraft unit has been assigned  63rd AAA Div
